The Swig Company Completes Recapitalization of One Beach Street in San Francisco's North Waterfront Office Submarket

San Francisco, CA – October 9, 2008 -- The Swig Company, LLC announced it has completed its planned recapitalization of One Beach Street, a 97,000-square-foot office building acquired by the company earlier this year and situated in the North Waterfront submarket of San Francisco.

The recapitalization includes the creation of an equity joint venture with Angelo, Gordon & Co. This is the second joint venture between The Swig Company and Angelo, Gordon. Last year, the two investors entered into a joint venture to own 115 Sansome Street, a 128,000 square foot Class A office building in the heart of San Francisco's Financial District.

In addition to forming this second joint venture, the partners took out a loan against One Beach Street with Washington Mutual Bank (WaMu) for $18,250,000. The loan, which was arranged by Bruce Ganong of Holliday Fenoglio Fowler LP's San Francisco office, closed on September 25, the same day on which WaMu announced it was to be acquired by JP Morgan Chase.

"We are delighted to continue our successful joint venture relationship with Angelo, Gordon and gratified that our partner shares our investment vision," said Jeanne Myerson, President and CEO of The Swig Company.

"I would also like to thank the entire team and especially our lender Washington Mutual and partner Angelo Gordon for enabling us to execute our business plan for this asset in the midst of a challenging credit environment," she added.

One Beach Street is a three-story 1920s-era building, located across from world renowned tourist destination, Pier 39, and was originally a warehouse facility and home of Otis Elevator's West Coast manufacturing operation. The warehouse was converted to office use in the 1970's and has since benefited from additional upgrades and a major seismic retrofit. The building is 100 percent leased. Tenants include Alliant

International University which leases over half of the building, S/B Architects (formerly Sandy & Babcock) and Skyy Spirits.
